COTTON MARKETS

Cold Wave Following Rains Sends Market Sharply Upward-Distant Up Most.

Monday Afternoon, April 5, Unusually cold weather for this late in the season following the rains in a large part of the belt furnished the dynamite which blew cotton bears about in every direction today and enabled the bulls to see prices sharply higher. In addition to this very unfavorable situation for getting the new crop started was further tide in foreign exchange, especially in sterling, which went several points above $4 for demand. In New York the list of options finished steady at gains of 41 to 103. Spots were generally quoted higher, but business continued little affected by the strength in contracts.

Liverpool was still closed, but considerable buying was credited to that market on this side, as they will not reopen for business until Wednesday morning. Unusually cold weather for this late reopen for business until Wednesday morning.

Wear was the big influence, and it played right into the hands of the bulls. Following a lot of rain in the upper eastern belt over the holidays, came a cold wave that sent temperatures to abnormally low levels, freezing and below being reported at least half way to the gulf, while the indications were for continued cold and even lower temperatures in the upper eastern belt tonight. It was not figured that the cold did much harm to the seed planted, but simply meant further delay to cropwork and planting, for the ground will be cold and wet and germination will be delayed. Light frost was reported as far down as San Antonio, Tex. The promise of slowly rising temperature encouraged some realizing, but this was checked by advices telling of snow faing during the morning in upper Georgia.

At the opening May in New York was the county of the state of the state ing during the morning in upper Georgia.

At the opening May in New York was 40c, July at 37.25c, and October at 34.60c, gains over the holidays of 40. 45 and 82 points. The weather since the markets closed for the Easter holidays had been very bad and first prices tried to discount such, but the first bulge failed to satisfy. Later May reached 40.48c, July, 37.95c and October 35c, although it was noted that the distant positions held their strength better than did the near, presumably reflecting increasing concern as to the new crop and to the existence of a larger short interest therein. The fact that spot advices failed to tell of any material effect on demand for the actual helped stimulate such a feeling.

The idea that the rise of over 100 noints had done a lot of discounting prevailed generally, and led to considerable profit taking, but sellers were quite cautious, for if the warming up process should bring additional rains, as often happens, there will be fresh incentive to short covering. However, the indications this morning were not for any rain.

Just what sent sterling and other

Just what sent sterling and other dorsign exchanges higher was not determined, but it together with easier call money rates had favorable effect. Demand for spots was about as it has been, although some reports say the lower grales are in a little better favor.

In the local market sales for the day were 1,300 bales, with no change in prices, but New Orleans elevated quotations 25 points, middling to 41,25c, and sales were 2,731 bales. Houston made no change and soid 1,475 bales.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON. NEW ORLEANS, April 5.—A rise of a cent a pound on the new crop months resulted in the early trading in cotton today, buying being based on the abnormally cold weather in the belt. The opening was strong and higher and the demand constantly increased so that at the end of the first hour of business the trading months were forced 71 to 105 points over the level of last week's close. May rose to 39.70c and October to 34.55c.

Realizing caused reactions of about dollar a bale from the early high rices, but toward noon another strong uying movement set in as the result of the bulge in sterling exchange rates and reports of snow in Georgia. On this upswing prices went 71 to 110 points over last week's finals. points over last week's finals.

ness until Wednesday, but houses with English trade connections were among the buyers here. Many private reports were received from the South, all of them companianfrom the South, all of them complaining of heavy rains in eastern and central belt sections over the holidays and low temperatures in the southwest. These reports seemed to have been pretty well discounted by the big opening advance on new crop months, but May sold up to 40 48c later in the morning, or 88 points net higher, and October also made a new high selling at 34.81c. Business then became somewhat less active but the market held very steady around midday with the trade waiting the detailed weather reports for a better line on over-holiday conditions.

The deterrent weather reports confirming the private news of rains in eastern and central sections of the belt and showing very low temperatures in the southwest led to further covering during the early afternoon which sent October contracts up to 34.90c and December to 34.20c, or 112 to 122 points net higher.

The holiday rains will delay preparations all the more, and low temperatures will be bad for germination of seed. Wednesday weekly weather and crop review will be builtish.—Beer to McFail. New York - Weld & Co. We believe built news will have to be kept coming in to cause any further sustained ad-vance.

New York —Bache & Co. The advance has been overdone and a substantial setback is guite likely to occur from this level, especially in the summer months. mer months.

New York—Clement, Curtis & Co. 10 McFall: Sentiment is much confused. New crop prices look comparatively high and conservative people do not advise following the advance but the market is extremely sensitive to weather conditions and will go up on bad weather much faster than it will decline on good.

New York—Sales of print cloth Fall River, Mass., for the week were close to 150,000 pieces. Market was firm throughout the week with a fairly good demand. Curtallment for the week amounted to about 105,000 pieces.

New Orleans—Early weather reports amounted to about 105,000 pieces.

New Orleans.—Early weather reports show very little rain beit last 24 hours but unusually low temperatures; however. Southern Texas escaped, but some cotton may have been nipped in Southeast Texas. Government says cold spel of short duration, rising temperatures today and fair spell likely for 48 hours—Kotler to Clark & Co.

-Kofler to Clark & Co.

New Orleans.—The market rose strongly on the exceedingly bad weather map. According to the official returns there was no moisture overnight except in the northeast portion where both show and rain fell. Over the belt generally temperatures are abnormal with much freezing weather in the west. A temperature of 30 degrees is reported as far south in Texas as Taylor. At Brownsville the temperature registered 42.

New York.—With here

registered 42.

New York.—With better weather mar-ket will react sharply; otherwise there will be no sellers; all now depends on weather.—Hubbard to Reese. New York.—Vickery wires from At-lanta: Conditions much worse than an-ticipated, no winter work, little plowing, lack labor; farmers month late; fertili-zer situation serious.—Hubbard to Reese.

Montgomery. Ala.—At this date in a normal season in the most southern sections about half of the prospective area in cotton is planted and in the more northern portions of the belt preparations are well under way and ready for planting. Not so at present. We have a late season and a late start. This coupled with the insufficient and inefficient land does not look promising for a large cotton acreage. However, the weather is spring-like and the soil in a good condition to allow easy oil in a good condition to allow easy ultivation. Farmers have bought great cultivation. Farmers have bought great quantities of fertilizers and have a good supply of live stock and in many instances are going to use tractors. This latter appliance as yet is an unknown quantity; it is only on trial, and it may, if not this season, in after years influence cotton planting and cotton raising and probably all other crops produced in the South.—Weil Brox.
